

Bug Clubs around the world

Erin Sullivan works with teachers in Sapmanga village, Papua New Guinea, to make a large spider web for an International Bug Club activity.

Erin Sullivan and Katie Remine work with teachers in Keweng village, Papua New Guinea to discover insect anatomy using a microscope.

Students at Olympic View Elementary in Seattle participate in Bug Club activities in their classroom.

Spider drawing by a Bug Club student in Sapmanga village, Papua New Guinea

Students of Keweng village, Papua New Guinea, wearing traditional clothing and adornments during a ceremony welcoming International Bug Club educators to their school.

A student in Isan village, Papua New Guinea, displays his "bush bug."

Dallas Zoo Bug Club enjoys their bug-shaped chocolates at snack time.

Bug clubs around the world include:

